regard over the Russo-Polish boundary dispute: what has happened to the Atlantic Charter. Well, let me quote Louis Guanter, publisher of the Financial World, commenting on Churchill's last speech. Quote: It is disturbng to hear Churchill intimate that the Atlantic Charter may have to be revised - and see Stalin acting as if a Teheran conference never was held. End of quote.

Perhaps this little incident taken from the February issue of the Pulaski Foundation Bulletin, will make Americans of Polish ancestry more proud that their names end in SKI. QUOTE-

The Honorable Chester SKIBINSKI, chairman of the Massachusetts State Labor Board and a former State Senator, was invited to serve on the Board of Directors of the International Institute of Boston; and in connection with this new office, attended a banquet arranged by the organization.

Called on to address the assembled guests, he began his talk with the following well-pointed remark:

Some believe that a name ending in SKI hampers them in their careers. It did not hinder Paderewski and it does not hinder Stokowski. And in order that it might help me, I have one at the beginning and one at the end of my name. End of quote.

And now for Mr. & Mrs. George Bolechowicz who <sup>last</sup> next Thursday will celebrated their 14th wedding anniversary, we play a TANGO KOCHAJ MNIE JAK DAWNIEJ. LOVE ME AS YOU USED TO.

(in the Pulaski Foundation Bulletin)

In an article ↑entitled WHO ARE THE GREAT MEN OF GERMANY, I found that "Martin Luther was descended from the SLAVONIC STOCK of the tribe of the LUTYCY"- that William von Leibnitz "was of Polish descent"-

79

That ~~Fredrick~~ Fredrich Nietzsche called himself a Pole." One of Nietzsche's ancestors had the name of Niedzielski. It was germanized to Nietzki, Nietzke and finally to Nietzsche." -

1 that Prince Karl Lichnowsky, "a German prince and ambassador, was born in Upper Silesia (former Poland) of Polish stock."

3 I will continue after playing GRAJ CYGANIE - PLAY GYPSY. for the speedy recovery of Mrs. Adalbert Tolans now resting at Benedictine Hospital.

2 In that same article WHO ARE THE GREAT MEN OF GERMANY I also found that Carl von Ossietzky, "prominent in German life," was "of Polish origin" - that the common ancestry of the Field Marshall Walter von Brauchitsch, who "built up Germany's armored motor divisions and was credited with organizing and planning and leading the blitzkrieg on Poland," is Polish - that Marshall Blaschkowitz is "of Polish descent" (Blaszkiewicz) -

"that these like millions of other Germans of Polish extraction, have been conditioned and made unconscious of their original blood. That was what long ages of invasions of the Polish soil have done to its many sons. These names, however, remain as the Polish trace in the German masses."

3 And now let's ~~listen to~~ a POLKA - ALEX ANDRA. for all those who Fr. Kaminski & our good friends of St. Joseph's Parish here here who next Sunday will commemorate the Constitution of the 3rd of May or Poland's Independence Day - with a banquet.

The writer of this article in the Pulaski Foundation Bulletin asks: quote

1 Given this conspicuously short list of German leaders of foreign blood, picked at random for the purpose of illustration, one can readily imagine what an exhaustive list would be like. These men are full of foreign bloods; "Prussianized" they are, as note the use they make of their often great abilities, but their blood is not pure German blood.
