the glowing tribute Joseph J. O'Brien, a member of the Merchant Marine Committee of the House of Representatives, paid to the Polish
Navy and Merchant Marine, at the Manhattan Center N.Y. City, March the 12th. But unfortunately it is too long. You will find it,
however in the Polish Review.

Incidentally, did you listen to Church ill's speech last Sunday? I wonder what happened to the ATLANTIC CHARTER?

But let's get back to our Polka music.

which reads: Article five: They will act in accordance with the two principles of not seeking territorial aggrandisement for themselves and of non-interference in the internal affairs of other states. End of quote.

A pertinent question, no doubt, is: What does Poland want? Let me give you the answer in the words of Dr. Wenceslaus Lednicki, professor at the Universities of Cracow and Brussels and now visiting lecturer at Harvard University. Quote: Her own territory and resources that would not cripple her natural progress. She wants to live on good-neighbor terms with Russia. She does not want to be within the "sphere of influence" of Russia any more than she wanted to be within the "sphere of influence" of Germany.

She did not accept a German protectorate, over which issue she went to war - and she will not submit to a Russian protectorate. Neither the domestic nor foreign policy of Poland can be dictated from Moscow. Poland must emerge from this war a free and independent state. That is what she is fighting for. That is what her most noble sons are dying for. End of quote.
